It is argued that the distribution of party size, on a one-dimensional policy dimension, gives an indication of the qualitative features of the bargaining process between parties and that this determines the type of coalition that forms and the average duration of government. Stability of coalition governments in Western Europe: 1945 ... A coalition government is a cabinet of a parliamentary government in which several parties cooperate. The usual reason given for this arrangement is that no party on its own can achieve a majority in the parliament. A coalition government might also be created in a time of national difficulty or crisis, for example during wartime, to give a government the high degree of perceived political legitimacy it desires whilst also playing a role in diminishing internal political strife. In such times, p List of countries with coalition governments - Wikipedia Radical-right parties have entered coalition governments in Austria and Norway, and in Denmark the Danish People's Party currently supports the center-right minority government.
