The art and archaeology of the ancient Near East and Egypt from the end of the prehistoric period, ca. 3000 B.C., to the beginning of the Iron Age, ca. 650 B.C. Focus on the rise of complex societies and the attendant development of architectural and artistic forms that express the needs and aspirations of these societies. Art and Archaeology | Princeton University An ebook (http://diffusion.org.uk/liquid/D_LG_Schofield_A4.pdf) on this subject summarises these relationships as: 1) art as an archaeological record - the idea that we create as well as consume material culture; 2) archaeological investigation as performance; and 3) art as interpretation, as narrative, and as characterisation. As well as collaborative work with Lucy Orta and Lucy Reynolds at Greenham Common, and the art/archaeology fusion of The Van, studies have also been conducted with ...Art and Archaeology - Archaeology, The University of York This text brings together an international panel to assess the state of knowledge of the Achaemenid, Parthian and Sasanian empires, and their contributions cover a range of subjects relating to the art and archaeology of Iran and neighbouring countries from the 5th century BC to the 7th century AD. The Art and Archaeology of Ancient Persia by Vesta ...Established and emerging art historians and archaeologists, both trained Byzantinists and specialists of European medieval art, come together to re-appraise the field in the light of current research, put forward new evidence from fresh archival, archaeological, or archaeometric research, and propose novel interpretations destined to blaze exciting new pathways to future study of this fascinating body of material. The Art and Archaeology of Lusignan and Venetian Cyprus ...'An excellent and accessible exploration of key aspects of Roman art, archaeology and architecture' Christopher Siwicki, University of Exeter 'The book's focus on materials and techniques and on context helps students understand the vibrancy of the field and the importance of archaeology not only in shaping but also revising our understanding of Roman art and culture' Art & Archaeology of the Roman World - Thames & Hudson Traditional approaches to the archaeology of art have borrowed from the history of art and the anthropology of art by focusing on iconography, meaning, communication and identity. This puts the archaeology of art at a disadvantage as an understanding of iconography and meaning requires a detailed knowledge of historical or ethnographic context unavailable to many archaeologists. The Archaeology of Art: Materials, Practices, Affects ...This course offers an introduction to the arts and archaeology of Africa through selected case-studies which raise the general issues involved in its study.
