The light-duty vehicle fleet is expected to undergo substantial technological changes over the next several decades. New powertrain designs, alternative fuels, advanced materials and significant changes to the vehicle body are being driven by increasingly stringent fuel economy and greenhouse gas emission standards. By the end of the next decade, cars and light-duty trucks will be more fuel efficient, weigh less, emit less air pollutants, have more safety features, and will be more expensive to purchase relative to current vehicles. Though the gasoline-powered spark ignition engine will continue to be the dominant powertrain configuration even through 2030, such vehicles will be equipped with advanced technologies, materials, electronics and controls, and aerodynamics. And by 2030, the deployment of alternative methods to propel and fuel vehicles and alternative modes of transportation, including autonomous vehicles, will be well underway. What are these new technologies - how will they work, and will some technologies be more effective than others? Written to inform The United States Department of Transportation's National Highway Traffic Safety Administration (NHTSA) and Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) Corporate Average Fuel Economy (CAFE) and greenhouse gas (GHG) emission standards, this new report from the National Research Council is a technical evaluation of costs, benefits, and implementation issues of fuel reduction technologies for next-generation light-duty vehicles. Cost, Effectiveness, and Deployment of Fuel Economy Technologies for Light-Duty Vehicles estimates the cost, potential efficiency improvements, and barriers to commercial deployment of technologies that might be employed from 2020 to 2030. This report describes these promising technologies and makes recommendations for their inclusion on the list of technologies applicable for the 2017-2025 CAFE standards.

In Ezra's first book, he learned about baseball, girls, cars, drinking, and a lot of hard physical labor, not necessarily in that order. America had not yet been pulled into the war in Europe, and we didn't yet know much about that strange little country across the Pacific, known as Japan.As we pick up the story in book two, Ezra is now in his early 20's, working hard for meager pay, and a long way from his family in Illinois and Indiana. He has been to a handful of states, now he thinks he would like to see the world. He enlists in the military and asks to go to the Philippines. He talks about baseball, girls, cars, and drinking, not necessarily in that order. He gets married on Independence Day, and soon after, his country also goes to war. He was on a troopship heading for the Philippines when news came over the radio about Pearl Harbor. It said, "This is not one of those Orson Wells stories like we had on Halloween a couple years before." It said, "This is the real thing." The ship was ordered back to San Francisco.He eventually does get his wish, to go to the Philippines.Come with Ezra as he becomes the wanderer, the man with Government Issue Gypsy blood.
